GUARDS TO BE PAID FRIDAY

Bugler Will Sound "Pay Day" Call

That interesting ceremony known as pay day will be participated in by the members of the Fresno company of National Guards on Friday evening.

A letter was received yesterday from the Adjutant General's office in Sacramento, giving notice of the transmission of the pay roll for the six months' period of service ending June 30, 1921. A special order has been issued by E. T. Stephens, adjutant general, commanding the Second Separate company, specifying September 2 at 8 o'clock as the date and the hour for the payment of pay. The bugle will sound "Pay Day," the ceremony of inspection will be carried through and the guardsmen will then line up at the paymaster's table.

The inspection of pay day is an innovation in national guard work and has just been instituted since the reorganization and federalization of the body. The guardsmen of yesterday were drilled with bayonet and rifle for the physical and social benefits to be derived therefrom. Under the present organization, the men are paid at the rate of approximately twenty-five cents per hour for the time consumed in the armory drill.

Plan Second Company. A campaign is now under way for the organization of another company of infantry for Fresno and the work of recruiting is progressing at such a rapid rate that it is expected the second company will be completed prior to next Monday night. Following the recognition of this new company by the War department three other companies will be organized in the near future, which has been compared to give to Fresno a complete battalion of National Guards.

In addition to the military advantage obtained in preparation for the war, the course of training provides sufficient exercise to keep the body in the best condition for the enjoyment of perfect health. Guardsmen are organized in command of the local companies are not only working along the lines prescribed by the War department, but also are supplementing it by special and individual activities. Special attention is being given at the present time to rifle practice and the development of marksmanship. A male champion is being practiced among the membership and during the winter months many social affairs in the way of dances and entertainments are to be scheduled. Indoor athletic and basketball teams will probably be organized in the field as soon as the members are developed sufficiently in this line of work.

The armory at 331 Broadway is open every evening from 7 to 10 o'clock for the purpose of receiving applications for enlistments from those who may wish to enter. The second company will just received approximately $5500. The organization of the other companies planned for Fresno and the completion of the program planned for this district will demand expenditure of approximately $10,000 in Fresno of about $4,000.

NOT DOING POLITICS

The refusal of the executive of the American Relief Administration for Russia to submit its operations to the pool formed by the Allied representatives at Paris is the proper answer to an apparent effort to make the work of relief subservient to an attempt to use the relief for political purposes.

If any American money is to be used to save the Russians from starvation, it should be on a humanitarian basis solely.

The suspicion that it is the purpose of the Allied Relief to favor the friends of the Allies and to punish their enemies may not be well founded. But if the American executive is convinced that this purpose exists, he is right to preserve the neutral character of the relief.

For charity must not be dealt with on a basis of having those who are agreeable personally or politically. It must go, if it is to go from Americans, freely.

TROUSERS FOR WOMEN

That a Chicago wholesale clothing firm has advertised knickerbockers for women seems sufficient indication that they are the coming thing. For commercial firms engage in pioneering usually with a "sure thing," only. So "pants" for women may soon be a reality everywhere.

There has never of course, been any reason why women should not wear trousers except the fact that they did not wear them. The "thing was not done." So it continued not to be done.

It is a part of the irony of things that trousers for women are to come not as a result of the drive of women like Dr. Mary Walker or the suffragettes. It is the work, apparently, of the lighter, the more vain part of femininity, instead of the serious, the thoughtful part.

Yet is this not equally deceptive?

If the wearing of abbreviated garments was solely a matter of fashion, if it were just that it represented the instinct of women, especially at certain periods in life to attract attention, would the style last long? Attention is created by change, rather than by static fact. If women hide their legs long enough, will not the showing of their legs be as revealing as anything else they might do?

Rather, the campaign of Dr. Mary Walker, for trousers, and the acceptance by women whose business it is to live, to live well and happily, and long, rather than merely to live for the immediate moment, indicates that the freedom of dress that has come in the last few decades are all parts of a consistent movement, one based upon the facts of modern life, and the conditions of living that apply to all women. Wasp waists or straight fronts or knee length skirts may each be a manifestation of an extreme sex consciousness. But when some of these things are adopted by all women, irrespective of the urge of the sex instinct, then we may be sure that they are natural and useful, and will remain as long as they are natural and useful.

PHOTOPLAY MERGER

Technical as the motion picture business is in its many details, the product reaches so many millions of people daily throughout the United States and the world that the suit that has been brought against the motion picture "trust" will excite universal attention.

Some more detailed interest in the question than merely that there is an attack on a "trust" will throw light on the values and the perils of commercial mergers, from the point of view of the public. Twenty years ago, all "trusts" were wicked trusts. We have learned different in the last two decades. We realize that in many ways the sort of commercial growth that is represented by merging of interests has actually created value for the American people as well as incidental profit for those who engaged in the trust.

Corporations were originally the means by which men with skill and men with money were able to pool their ability and their capital into a working organization, for the betterment of industry and trade as well as for their own profit. But soon the spread of business was such that the corporation, as it was then constituted, could not do business. The corporation had the same weakness with relation to its size that the individual had with relation to his. So there arose the "merger," the "trust," the combination of businesses into new and larger businesses.

It has been the general complaint against combinations that they beat down the quality and force the price to the consumer, through shutting off competition. It has generally been said in favor of combinations that they have reduced the overhead of business, increased efficiency in the personnel by establishing schools of service and promotion systems, and that they have been enabled to adapt the quality of the output to the public in a way that small businesses could not afford to do.

How have these general working principles operated in the history of the motion picture trust?

No doubt, the motion picture industry was very much "wildcat" in the days that preceded the gigantic mergers. At first the pictures were single reels. The cost of one probably very rarely exceeded a thousand dollars. If the picture succeeded, well and good. If it failed, the loss was not great. But the conditions of competition were frightful. Manufacturing companies sprang up all over the country, the expense of distribution was an enormous part of the cost, and the methods of distribution were in their infancy. In order to get business, makers vied with each other for patronage on a cut throat basis. Soon a merger of the distributors was formed. But in the meantime, the public had grown disgusted with the cheapness and inanity of the single reels. It was realized that photoplays, in order to retain public attention, must grow. The "feature" was developed, from four reels up to ten or more. It was soon found that the public did not want more than five reels in a photoplay and would not be satisfied with much less. So five reels became the standard size of the movie.

Again, the production of five reels began all over the country. The cost instead of being less than a thousand dollars, rose to tens or hundreds of thousands of dollars, with the cheapest costing usually five thousand dollars or more. On the new basis of cost a new kind of competition arose. Stars had to be given a national reputation, and gaining it, they demanded a greatly exaggerated salary figure. The public would know the star, and occasionally the director. So the producer must pay high for stars and sometimes for directors, especially those few who could put across in the best way the new art.

It is interesting to note that the group of men who are now called the motion picture trust is the same group that first commercialized the "feature" on a quantity output basis.

What has been the result of the merger control of motion pictures?

In the first place, it has not done away with competition. There are now very many competitors in the picture field.

It happens, however, that the motion picture business cannot live on a succession of wonderful plays. To expect it to do so would be as ridiculous as to expect a chef to serve his patrons with a new and wonderful dish for each dinner throughout the year. There has to be a running quality of play.

The trust appears to be able to supply this running quality of play in a way that is very difficult for other producers. Its average standard of trust output is much higher, in this respect, than any of its competitors.

But, on the other hand, the trust, being in the business of maintaining its big output on a high standard, does not keep up the value of its "specials." The big pictures, the notable pictures of the last few years, are in very few instances, the output of the bigger producers. They are specials of their competitors, striking exceptions to a usually poor output, or the work of an individual undertaking.

The work of any system tends to uniformity. The Standard Oil company tends to produce one quality of oil. This is good in oil, and it may be good in food, but it is distinctly not good in art. For art requires individuality. We would think that the movie trust could secure this individuality through the work of directors. They do try to. But apparently they do not altogether succeed.

We may assume, in the photoplay business, that anti-trust proceedings are a part of the business of getting this new art on a working business basis, that will be most satisfactory to the public. As a trust, the situation is not serious. But it is unpleasant to various elements in the business through the effort of the trust to keep exhibitors in terror by threatening them with competition.

If an exhibitor buys from the "trust," he has to compete with his local competitor in price and his margin is so cut that his business is a perilous risk. Or, if he enters into a local agreement with his competitor, so that neither will have to pay above a certain price, then the trust will be rich enough to encourage the starting of new competition or else to build a local theater of its own. It is this building of trust theaters that has aroused, it is reported, the fight on the trust.

On the whole, the trust has been able to improve greatly the mechanical side, the "splendid" side of the photoplay. It is questionable whether it has contributed greatly to the art of the motion picture.

OF ISHMAEL

Ezra Clark Hill in N. Y. Times

Free-born, I, of a free-born race,
Yet nevermore am I my spirit free;
There is a "small" small voice within me,
The blood of Ishmael crying in me.

(Ishmael, dead in your lonely grave
These centuries gone, by a weary way
Your sons must wander to find their rest,
And blood of your blood is my heart today.)

Here, in the hard-bound city ways,
With the endless clatter of wheel on wheel
Year after year till the soil is stunned,
The faint heart sick, and the senses reel—

How do I know when the cold earth turns
To welcome the Spring in the waiting north?
When, under languorous southern skies,
The odorous dogwood blossoms forth?

How do I know when the warm tide throbs
On the stark, gray shores of the eastern coast?
And a young wind sings o'er the highest peak
Of that rugged chain of the Rocky host?

By the pulsing foot and the trouping heart
That ever must chafe and fret in me:
By the sign that the Lord notes Hagar gave—
That the free are bond, and are bond yet free.

(Ishmael, dead and forgotten dust
In your narrow grave or some eastern hill
Your sons still wander because they must,
And still are outcast because they will.)

And mine is ever the bond-child's mark
Till the last gray dawn of my life is past—
Till my feet are sealed in some quiet place
And dust of your dust is my heart at last.

Take Stock of Your Resources

It is not necessary for men of today to know how to go about the job of keeping alive if they happen to be cast away on a desert island.

The possibility that you, for example, will ever be cast away on a desert island is extremely remote. It would take you a long time to learn how to strike fire by rubbing two sticks together, or to grind corn and make flour by pounding one stone with another.

If you feel that your incomplete knowledge of these things would endanger your life if you were cast away, you can always keep from being cast away by staying ashore.

You are, however, likely to find yourself in tight places, not once, but many times.

And upon your resourcefulness will depend your successful escape from them.

It pays every one now and then to take stock of his resources.

For example, if you were suddenly left in charge of the office or mill or factory or farm where you are now employed, how would you go about the job?

You may not have thought of that, but if you ever do have to think of it, you will have to think quickly, or you will lose a great opportunity.

Why not think of it now, while there is plenty of time?

Why not watch the man who has the job, and see how he conducts it, making (always to yourself) suggestions that you think would be improving?

Then if you happen to be left in charge, you will at least have a plan of procedure, and a good plan is half of success.

Again think what you would do for a livelihood if through some circumstances you were thrown out of your present position.

Have you ever thought even of hunting for another job? Are you capable of doing hard physical work without breaking down in the first two hours?

If you are not, you'd better get into condition. For when a man suddenly loses his job, if it happens to be in hard times, to find physical work is sometimes about the only thing he can find to do, for a time at least.

Today there are many soft handed young men who would like to know how to do some of the things that are in demand. But they do not know how, and they wouldn't have the strength to do them if they did.

Always it is worth while to know what your resources are. If they are insufficient for emergencies, improve them. If you know that no matter what happens you will not starve, you have gained confidence, and confidence is better than great riches.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

LOS ANGELES, OWENS RIVER AND CENTRAL CALIFORNIA

Editor Republican:—Disappointment at the outcome of the conference held in Fresno, August 22, in regard to the Los Angeles "water grab" has prompted me to write expressing my opinion on the subject. Having been over the Owens many times where the city of Los Angeles is surveying for the power lines in the Kings River Canyon and in the headquarters of the Kings, I cannot but regret that she should have gotten there ahead of our own San Joaquin Valley to which it rightfully belongs. This summer I had an opportunity to cross the Sierras and drop into the Owens Valley to the little town of Independence. There I found much bitterness expressed against the city of Los Angeles. It was interesting to talk to the old timers who were used to do farmers, and hear them tell of the different "skin games" that were worked to get the water which is now flowing down the aqueduct to the city of Los Angeles. They say it was the biggest piece of trickery that was ever pulled in the state of California. And they are watching with interest the attempt to pull the wool over our eyes here in the San Joaquin Valley. They went through the same stage of "skin talk" of working with us, and keeping "private concerns" out. Now the water that should rightfully be used by the Owens Valley is used, for a great part, for irrigation in different districts around the city of Los Angeles and the Owens Valley is left a desert.

The representative from Los Angeles speaks of the future of the city. It seems to me that we should be far-sighted enough to see a future for this valley. The city of Los Angeles has more than the city of Los Angeles could ever hope to have. An army of eastern tourists, boasting of the enormous population of the city, and a good climate are here. In our valley we have a greater variety of products than most places, and we have scenery that would make Los Angeles seem like a little town in California. When Los Angeles Canyon would make it a rival of the Yosemite, and bring tourists to Fresno as a starting-point from all over the United States. I have heard people say that the Owens Valley is a beautiful valley, but it is not. The tourist industry of Fresno county has been wrecked up as well. If Los Angeles city makes the Kings River canyon a lake, there will be no tourist industry. I tell you that I do not choose a power line that would ruin our scenery of the high mountains, and there must be many places that could be chosen without ruining the Kings River Canyon.

The City of Los Angeles has made herself unpopular among most of the people of the Owens Valley, and she is losing a "skin game" as a grievance. We may not be skinned just like any of the southern cities, but in some new and unforeseen way, when Los Angeles gets what she wants we can take what's left. But at the end of her rope, her resources can't support her population and she must reach out like an octopus and grab resources from other parts of the state. Mr. Mathews said, "Los Angeles, a sister city, does not purpose to invade territory so far outside the city where the foreign territory might suffer, or have its interests subordinated to Los Angeles." If the reader could talk to the inhabitants in the little old town of Independence, he would certainly find a territory invaded and suffering and subordinated to the interests of the city of Los Angeles. Of course we may pride ourselves on being too progressive and wide awake to be caught up, but just so they may have progressed in the art of trickery.

Mr. Wheeler says that Los Angeles has risen from tenth to seventh place in manufacturing output in the United States because she has taken advantage of her opportunities.

With water power right here in our county, what's to prevent us from progressing in that line? Why would we let her develop our resources right here in our own county, and carry it three hundred miles away when we need it all ourselves? To my notion Fresno has the largest future of any city in the state of California if she will just take advantage of her resources and opportunities. I agree with Mr. Tolman and oppose Los Angeles having any of the Kings River power. If she would not be fair and square with the water question in Owens Valley, she might not be with us with the power question. While we are discussing the differences between the San Joaquin Valley and the City of Los Angeles, I am wondering how many of these in charge, or the people of the San Joaquin Valley, anticipated the differences between the San Joaquin Valley and the City of Los Angeles. I am wondering how many of these in charge, or the people of the San Joaquin Valley, anticipated the differences between the San Joaquin Valley and the City of Los Angeles. I am wondering how many of these in charge, or the people of the San Joaquin Valley, anticipated the differences between the San Joaquin Valley and the City of Los Angeles.

SEES CAPITALISM BEARING GIFTS

From the N. Y. Times

The meeting on Sunday of Socialists and Communists saw a splendid new opportunity to attack capitalism, and seized it. The proposed relief of starving Russians could be presented as a hidden capitalist plot. Secretary Hoover could be held up as a willing tool of capitalism scheming to undermine the Soviet government by saving the lives of millions whom it is unable to help. The chance was too tempting to the assembly Socialists, and they accordingly made speeches and passed resolutions exposing this new counter-revolution in Russia disguised as melting charity.

The think seems grotesquely intended to offend and insult. To what aim of mind these men and women must have been brought when they seek to poison with their bitter suspicions and charges a simple act of charity? Of course, the world has been divided into the good and the bad, the honest and the dishonest, the virtuous and the vicious. Their objections are fixed. But it may be remarked that they choose a strange way of showing their consuming love for their loved Russia—trying to get from their lips the food held out to them.

No point which Mr. Gompers has ever made is one-half so illuminating as the point which he so persistently misses. The world has been divided into the good and the bad, the honest and the dishonest, the virtuous and the vicious. Their objections are fixed. But it may be remarked that they choose a strange way of showing their consuming love for their loved Russia—trying to get from their lips the food held out to them.

Trying to Oblige

A lassie I know well
Came to me yesterday
And said to me
That something seemed to her
Much gang aye
With what I write
For here of late
I give the very dickens,
These were her words,
To Billy Sutherland
And Mister Payne
And Guy E. Leonard
And Emory Wishon
And other folk
And haul them o'er the coals
And give them much lambasting
And she would like
For me to change a while
And write of happy things
And pat the folk I know
Upon the backs of them
And tell the folk
Who read these lines
Of happy happenings:
I'll bet she wants to hear
Of little bubbling streams
Far back in mountain glens
That sing soft songs
Of cool contentment
All the night and day.
She wants to know
That stars still sparkle
In the heavens above
And silvery moon
Still smiles at night
And Joaquin sun
Still battles the land
In his warm glow,
I feel I'd please her
If I'd speak a word
Of flitting flutters
On smooth highways
And those who ride therein
Looking with glad eyes

On lush alfalfa fields
Where mowers click and clatter
And patient horses
Drag great loads
Of fragrant hay
To neat-filled barns,
Or it may be this lass
Likes sound of baby voices
And would bid me speak
Of babbling bairnies
Rolling on the grass
In Roeding Park
And testing wee fat legs
In journeys long for them
From father's fingers
Far across the world
To mother's lap.
Even, it might be,
For this lassie
Is that pleasant age,
She'd look with pleasure
On some lined ideas
Concerning something old,
Yet ever new
The way of man with maid
When sun sets low
Across the western hills
And evening shadows come
And arm of lad Columbus
If that be proper word
For something starting out
On exploration tour,
Around the waist of one
Who waits and wonders wistfully
If this be it, Miss Ann,
That you would like to hear
I'm glad to say it
And I greatly hope
You'll have a thought for me
When next the moon
And quiet night
And whispering lad
And arm and you
Are all together.

More Truth Than Poetry

Paging Old Acquaintances

Where's the chap who used to say that there would come a time some day—
When he'd eschew the bubbling brew
That held him in its clutches,
And, being able to abstain from liquor which benumbed his brain
And chilled his soul, he'd gain the goal
That only greatness touches?

He's kept a portion of his vow; he isn't drinking any now
And yet his mind is not inclined
Toward any high endeavor.
At prohibition rates for booze he simply can't afford to use
Beer, gin or fizz, and yet he is
The same old bum as ever!

Where's the man of whom 'twas said that the besotted life he led
Obscured his fame and kept the flame
Of mighty genius hidden,
The man his friends proclaimed would rise and write
his name across the skies
In brave array when dawned the day
That liquor was forbidden?

For him the liquor ceased to flow on July First, two years ago,
Upon said morn J. Barleycorn
And our young hero parted.
He is not handicapped a bit because he's jingled, corried or lit,
But if his aim is still for fame
He'd best be getting started.

WINTER SKETCH

Lined with rose the snow hills lo
Along an over-widening sky.
A mist of front o'changes the robe
Of stifled, stark, upon the knees
Of rock, drawn up in pain and cold
Beneath the soil. And ridges bold
Cast shadows chill in valleys deep,
Where stricken rivers crack and creep.

COVER CROPS ARE DISCUSSED

Recommendations to Be Sent to Farmers

At a meeting called by the Fresno County Farm Bureau cover crop committee, representatives from San Joaquin, Fresno, Kings, and Inyo counties, together with representatives from the California Associated Raisin Company and several local seed stores, held a general discussion on the value of cover crops, and the improvement of the quality of other crops by the sowing of such cover crops.

As the result of the meeting which was held yesterday in the offices of the Fresno County Farm Bureau, it was voted by the representatives present that the general recommendations of the meeting be copied and sent to the directors of each farm center along with the recommendations that the farm center cover crop committee secure at least ten covers in their locality for plant cover crops this coming year on a commercial scale for demonstration purposes, under conditions specified by County Farm Adviser J. F. Benson. The conditions under which the cover crops will be planted will be worked out by Mr. Benson and a committee within a few days and then forwarded to the farm center directors for distribution to the growers.

It was also recommended that the center cover crop committee secure at least two growers to plant test plots, using perhaps six or seven different varieties of leguminous crops which are recommended by the farm bureau committee.

During the meeting it was pointed out that cover crops of superior quality, those grown on soils not covered by cover crops, are necessary to pay attention to soil conditions and better cultural procedure. It was stated, and to watch the moisture conditions of the soil closer to work for deeper tillage, which will all help in improving the soil, both cover and regular. It was pointed out that where cover crops were used the soils were penetrated with moisture more quickly and easily, that the soils retained the moisture longer and also that the soils which had been covered cropped could be worked much easier.

Various methods of handling cover crops, the seedling of such the preparation of the soil for seedling purposes and the care of the cover crop until the coming of the fall rains were discussed by the various men and growers present who have grown cover crops with success. The discussion also pertained to the various varieties of cover crops which are best suited for sandy, loam, alkali and red soils, and the way to pick the most suitable kinds for the particular locality.

In pointing out the value of cover

GET MARKET DIRECTOR. BAKERSFIELD, Aug. 31.—What the members of the Farmers' Price Market should appoint their own market director, was the statement made to a committee, representing the farmers, by Mayor Houghmy on behalf of the city council, at a meeting held here yesterday. The committee members present were Messrs. Lowe, Tick and Chandler. The council voted to allow the farmers through the market director, who is to be chosen by the produce men themselves, to mark off the space allotted them on Sixteenth street on the south side of the city hall park in any manner they see fit.

It was shown that the legal minimum crops imported new life into the "hot" which was the reason for the improvement of the productivity of the soil.

E. H. Knapp, was the presiding officer at yesterday's meeting at which time it was announced that the recommendations of the meeting would be written up and sent out within several days.

VETERANS HEAR REUNION CALL

363rd Plans to Attend 91st Gathering

Major James Rolph, "Father of the Regiment" is going to travel to the reunion of the Ninety-first (Wild-West) division at Los Angeles September 24 and 25 with the men of the 363rd Infantry, "San Francisco's Own." Word that he is coming was received today by J. W. Sutphen, general chairman of the reunion committee.

The San Francisco contingent is to travel by water, leaving the Bay City Friday, September 23, at 4 p. m. on the S. S. Yalo and arriving at San Pedro, the port of Los Angeles, at 9:30 o'clock the next morning. With bookings already made nearly sufficient to fill the big passenger steamer preparations are being made to charter a second. It is expected that nearly a thousand men from points along railroads leading into San Francisco will make the trip. In OD uniforms and over seas caps, with tin hats strapped over one shoulder ready for the master of the road to be staged by the division, the men from the north are planning to make the City of the Angels sit up and take notice. Though most of the crowd will be from the north, there will be several hundred from other units of the division.

Veterans of the 363rd in Los Angeles have formed a committee of sixty to welcome their comrades from the north and plan to meet them at the boat with a band and special train. Arriving in Los Angeles they will march four blocks to Reunion headquarters in the club room of Los Angeles hotel of the American Legion and there disband. Saturday night they will be a 363rd banquet at which Major Rolph will be the principal speaker and Sunday, September 25, in Exposition park which 25,000 or 30,000 people are expected to attend.

TO ATTEND MEETING. BAKERSFIELD, Aug. 31.—By unanimous vote, the city council has instructed City Clerk Vance Van Riper to notify Charles F. Hughes, president of the League of California Municipalities, that the council as a body, and six department heads, would attend the twenty-fourth annual convention of the league to be held at Santa Monica, September 27-30 inclusive.

HEARING POSTPONED. BAKERSFIELD, Aug. 31.—Hearing of the motion of O. B. Smith for probation, or the imposing of sentence if the motion were denied, was continued by Judge J. W. Mahon in Department One of the Superior court today, until Monday, September 12, at request of T. F. Allen, of counsel for defense. Smith pleaded guilty on July 18 to five counts involving the embezzlement of $3,500 from the Kern County Land company, while employed as cashier by that concern. Assistant District Attorney P. E. Conroy represented the people.

walls of the buildings were hit frequently by bullets.

By mid-afternoon, with the fighting still proceeding in some areas of Belfast between the Ulster loyalists and Sinn Féiners, the total death toll since Monday night had reached 34. Scores have been wounded, but the exact number is not known.

Early today Sir William Coates, the lord mayor, made strong representations to General Carter Campbell commanding the British troops in Belfast and chief of police Gossion concerning the need for protection of the city's citizens.

Last night Ulster special constabulary, nearly all former soldiers, were in action in the Shankside street area. Sniping is carried out on the most approved lines, field glasses being used by the snipers.

Tram cars raced through the riot district of Queen's street and Old Lodge road with the passengers lying flat to escape the bullets. An Englishman on his honeymoon was severely wounded.

Snipers began last night's chief fighting with an attack on Crook street at Royal avenue. A party of Sinn Féiners began firing on the crowd which started to run along Royal avenue in a wild stampede. Many were trampled down.

"Later Sinn Féiners fired from Shankside street into Liff street and Old Lodge road. Armored cars proceeded through the riot district throughout the night, occasional shots were heard and the night was declared to be the worst in the city's history.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon the city was comparatively quiet. The military had taken to street duty, although they had not gone into Royal avenue. Traffic had been restored in York street.

The severity of the York street rioting this morning led to dismissal of the employees of the great flax-spinning works. When employees reported for work the plant entrance was in the line of fire. A bullet was knocked in the factory wall on a side street.

Mary Jane McCracken was shot in the arm as she crossed Nelson street.

Henry Bowers, 38, who was killed last night, was shot and a companion was wounded as he lighted a

Insane Woman Held Following Alameda Murder

ALAMEDA, Calif., Aug. 31.—Arnold Postel, capitalist, was shot to death here this afternoon in the corridor of the Postal building, he owned. The police are holding Mrs. Justina D'Agostini, found beside Postel's body, raving, and apparently insane.

Tenants in the building heard an argument and then three revolver shots, but no one saw the shooting. Mrs. D'Agostini shot and killed her husband, Enrico, in January, 1916. A short time ago a son was drowned in Oakland, and a week ago her father was killed in Mexico. The police believe that she asked Postel for money with which to go to Mexico on business, and his refusal, shot him.

cigarette from one held by his companion.

Religious War

LONDON, Aug. 31.—The Belfast correspondent for the Westminster Gazette, describing last night's riots, says:

"With the approach of dusk Royal avenue and other parts of the center of the city were the scene of disgraceful attacks on Catholic pedestrians. During the night any Catholic who chanced to be passing down Royal avenue was savagely maltreated.

"In some cases men were struck down and killed and one man was attacked by bands of Orange hoodlums. Encouraged by their success the mob first used Castle street upon assembled passengers waiting for tram cars.

"The correspondent describes how 'apportioning' of Catholic pedestrians proceeded with the firing by the mob. Unmistakable sympathizers also were busy, he says, in the York street area, where many pedestrians were endangered and five wounded.

The correspondent adds: "A crowd of unionists congregated in Denmark street, and attacked Nationalists' residents of Shankside and adjacent streets. The result was a desperate conflict. Police armored cars were despatched to the scene, but it was an hour before peace was restored."

"Terence," said Mrs. Mulcahey, who had been dipping into Shakepeare, "this writer says there do be persons in stone."

"Of course about that," replied Terence cautiously, "but many's the time I've known a brickbat to hold a foiner argument."—Boston Transcript.

of President Harding's proclamation throughout this district. Thousands were printed here last night. Friend and foe alike received the pamphlets containing the President's command that all persons engaged in "insurrectionary proceedings" disperse and return to their homes at or before noon, Thursday, September 1. Flying toward the plane crossed Moore and parts of Kanawha counties, dropping the circulars.

In Logan, the night was one of great activity. Conference between state officials and county authorities were held; rifles were cleaned and stacked in the courthouse corridors, and a thousand "defenders" held themselves in readiness to march.

Banholzt Leaves

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Final instructions were given by Secretary Weeks today to Brigadier General H. H. Banholzt, who has been ordered by the war department to West Virginia coal field to observe the response to President Harding's proclamation calling on all persons engaged in "unlawful and insurrectionary proceedings" to return to their homes by tomorrow noon.

Officers of the legal department of the army recalled today that martial law as such had not been declared by the federal government in any state since reconstruction days. Should troops be used in West Virginia, their use, it was said, would be as "federal aid in times of domestic disturbance" rather than a declaration of martial law.

General Banholzt left today for Charleston. The declaration of military rule and use of troops if found necessary by General Banholzt, it was stated, would be confined to Kanawha, Fayette, Boone, Logan and Mingo counties, a section in the southwestern part of the state, embracing Charleston, the state capital.

Reports sent Governor MORGAN. He said the armed men resented orders to disperse, declaring they would force the government to declare martial law and threatening to blow up troop trains should soldiers be sent.

A telegram signed by members of the West Virginia delegation which conferred yesterday with Secretary

War Stories Are Outdone in France

PARIS, Aug. 27.—Those isolated persons who were reported several years ago not to have known there was a war in progress have been outdone.

When Marshal Foch went to Rome recently to lay one of the many ceremonies he has put in place, he passed a group of old women.

"Look," said one. "There goes Marshal Foch."

"Well," said another, "who is he and what has he done?"

"Near Beer" Is

Found Too Near

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 30.—Several former saloons were raided in Los Angeles during the Elk's convention in July on a charge of selling near-beer that was too near.

The refreshments committee of the Ninety-first division vouches to be held there Sept. 24 and 25, promises to have an analysis made of the liquids to be served at the regimental banquets during the gathering and if any are found to be "near" to reject them.

Weeks, reached the war department late today from Charleston.

"The committee just returned to Charleston," the message said, "and find miners from practically every camp in the Kanawha-Fayette-Boone section rushing to Logan. We saw several men with high-powered rifles in automobiles rushing to the troubled zone."

"Miners openly state, according to reports to the governor, they will not obey President's proclamation. Necessary that federal troops be sent at once if loss of life is to be avoided. More than five thousand men under arms close to Boone-Logan line and more on their way."

General Banholzt carried a letter from Secretary Weeks to Governor MORGAN. It said:

"You have received the President's proclamation ordering the insurrectionary element in West Virginia to retire peacefully to their homes by noon on September 1. I am sending General H. H. Banholzt with instructions to report to me the extent to which the order of the President is obeyed. In case it becomes necessary to send federal troops this officer is designed to command them."

"I very earnestly hope it may not become necessary to employ federal troops. If they are used it will be to restore peace and order in the most effective and prompt way. The problem will be regarded by the military authorities purely as a tactical one."

STATES LABOR IS FOREMOST

Education Is Offered as Remedy

TOKYO, Aug. 30.—Premier Hara recently told a delegation from the House of Peers, say Japanese newspapers, in response to questions referring to the labor unrest and the general agitation against the high cost of living, that the question of remedy was the most urgent matter at present confronting the Japanese Empire. Personally, he believed the most effective remedy to be education. The government was making efforts for the encouragement of education, although there is much to be done for the development of public spirit and social morality.

"At present although Japan is suffering from the high cost of living, the premier said, 'various measures are being taken for the regulation of the price of rice and other commodities. As to the regulation of speculation, it is not advisable to apply drastic measures in conformity with the provisions of the criminal code. In the meantime the promulgation of the Labor Law is under consideration by the authorities, who are carrying on investigations with a view to drawing up a bill adequate for the special circumstances of this country. A keen watch is being kept on the progress of labor disputes in Kobe, Osaka and other parts of Japan by the government and it is regrettable that those troubles are growing. Every available means are being taken to bring about a speedy settlement. Although those who infringe the law in their activity during the troubles shall be punished, instructions are given to refrain from too stern measures."

ECONOMY PLEA MADE IN KERN

County Government Expense Grows

BAKERSFIELD, Aug. 31.—In the presence of many local business men and other residents of the county, and at the behest of those intimately in touch with business conditions in the country, A. Well made an appeal to the supervisors to prune the county fiscal budget with the view of reducing the tax rate of 11.45 recently fixed by the board. Well quoted figures to the board emphasizing the big increases that have taken place in the cost of county government here, and stated that while these increases have been made, he desires to criticize the board, or to intimate that the board was planning unnecessary expenditures, still they wanted to impress upon the supervisors the critical financial condition of the country and the imperative necessity for pruning all expenses to the minimum pending more stable conditions.

The supervisors declared to Mr. Well that the budget had carefully been drafted and that the fiscal estimates had, in their opinion, been made as much as they could be. Various points raised by Well in connection with government costs were explained by members of the board apparently to the satisfaction of those present.

Increases Are Quoted:—Well in pointing out the great increases in cost of government here were as follows: Valuation of county for taxation, $100,144,021. 1921 valuation for taxation, $185,060,531. Increase, $84,916,510. 1920 assessed valuation for taxes for general fund, $55,773,191. 1921 valuation for road taxes, $110,014,735. Increase, $54,241,544. 1920 budget for general road purposes, $24,802. 1921 budget for same purposes, $46,055,935; estimated motor vehicle licenses, $60,000; total, $106,055.93. Increase for roads this year, $72,253. 1920 budget demands for taxation, $1,980,813.16. 1921 budget demands for taxation, $2,422,555. Increase, $442,741.84. Increase Apical Fund:—The board of supervisors has increased the budget apical fund for the department of county inspector of apicalies from $150, the allowance originally made and which has been devoted to this office during past years, to $650 for the current fiscal year, as a result of an appeal made by J. I. Weems, inspector of apicalies, for at least two inspections of all bee colonies in the county each year, to curb diseases which are making inroads on the honey industry here.

IS SILENT ON POWER NEEDS

Edison Engineer Does Not Answer Query

Big Creek-San Joaquin river project, and 10,000 horsepower from Kern river, making a total of 22,000 horsepower developed this year. Three units already constructed on Big Creek are furnishing, at one plant 44,000, another plant 60,000, and the third plant 30,000 horsepower making a total of 134,000 horsepower, and these power houses are to be increased.

At Florence Lake an excellent dam exists, and it is planned to tunnel from Florence Lake into Huntington Lake. This tunnel is now under construction, and will be completed in 1923. Shaver Lake property has been bought with the idea of making that a reservoir in connection with the plan of building a reservoir on the South Fork under this plan a conduit will be built from Huntington to Shaver, and a power house is to be constructed at Shaver. The total project from this development will mean the development of 1,200,000 horsepower, in making application for developing hydro-electric power the Edison company realizes that it cannot "hog" the power, and that it must deal with other companies with other plans of development, said Barre.

Colorado River Development. The speaker outlined the possibilities of power development on the Colorado river, which will develop 4,000,000 horsepower in electrical energy, providing for irrigating 2,000,000 acres of land, and will create a lake reservoir 200 miles in length. The completion of this plan, said Barre, will cost from 600 to 800 million dollars, or more than the total cost of the Panama canal.

William Glass, who led the inquiries of the speaker, said that the San Joaquin valley wants to know what power Los Angeles has and is developing at the present time, and what she legitimately needs for her uses.

"As to the City of Los Angeles, I am not sure that I know why she went into the high Sierra for power outside the Owens river project," replied the engineer.

Barre declared that the City of Los Angeles was thinking that the power business starts with a power plant. Having built a plant, the city, he said, then walked up to the fact that it had no distribution system. The city is developing 72,000, and has a possible commercial development of 250,000 horsepower on the aqueduct, and in using a total of 105,000 horsepower, the deficit being supplied by the Edison company.

Out of several schemes which were evolved for distribution, the one which there said was carried out provided for a small distributing system built by the city, providing for fifteen to twenty thousand horsepower. The Edison company agreed to sell to the city all its distributing system inside the city, the Edison company to operate outside the city and the city to operate within the city itself. In addition, the Edison company was to sell all the power inside the city which the latter could not furnish.

There was also an operating agreement by which the Edison company would act as agents of the city in distributing power, collecting revenue, and conducting the various business

Sciot Band Will Practice Sept. 8

The recently organized Sciot band will hold the next meeting, September 8 when over 40 musicians are expected to be assembled. It is expected that the Sciot band will be one of the features at the coming Supreme Session of Sciot to be held in this city November 2, 4 and 6.

A permanent organization has been effected and the officers have been elected in this new activity of Fresno Pyramid No. 10. It is reported that band practice will start immediately. The charter members are anxious to enroll other members as soon as possible.

Operations. This agreement is in effect until next March or April, said the engineer.

Los Angeles "Lead." The total "lead" of the City of Los Angeles at present is 105,000 horsepower, of which 72,000 is supplied by the city, and the remainder by the Edison and one other company. The Edison company is supplying the city's deficiencies, and provides the reserve power in case the city's power should fail.

Of the 3,000,000 horsepower available for California from inside and outside the state, Barre estimates that ultimately the San Joaquin valley will require 1,000,000 horsepower. The Sacramento valley 1,000,000 horsepower, leaving 6,000,000 horsepower to be divided between Los Angeles, the southern part of the state, and the San Francisco bay region.

Referring to questions that had developed as to Los Angeles' future power developments, Barre was called on to express an opinion as to whether the city could not get its power from the Colorado river as cheaply as from the San Joaquin valley territory. The engineer said that ultimately power from the Colorado river would be cheaper for Los Angeles than power from the San Joaquin territory, but the initial cost of such development would be much greater in the Colorado river development.

Answering question from Senator M. B. Harris, Barre explained that the 105,000 horsepower being used by the City of Los Angeles includes industrial purposes and everything but the street railway system. The railways used 95,000 horsepower, covering the entire Los Angeles territory, which is supplied by the Edison company.

At the close of the engineer's address he was given a hearty round of applause from the meeting, which included more than 200 leading business and professional men of the city.

In the absence of President Antrim of the Realty board, Herbert Levy presided at the meeting.

In advance of Barre's address, Guy Leonard, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, made a report compiled on behalf of the San Joaquin Valley Commercial Secretaries association. This report went into statistics as to the water power available in the Sierra, the development and needs of hydro-electric power in the San Joaquin valley, and the attitude of the valley toward Los Angeles and its encroachments on the Kings river.

TELLS GROWERS TO HOLD GRAPES

Shipper Says Prices are Going Upward

A bright picture of prices facing grapes in the fruit market was painted by one of the local fruit consignment men of Fresno yesterday with a warning to the growers to wait for their fruit to turn ripe and for picking and shipping as the market is going to keep on ascending rather than declining.

Producers are to obtain better prices this year, at least those who wait and do not try to obtain seemingly high prices at the beginning of each season, than ever before, the party said. The Republican minimum price for wine grapes selling on board cars is $80. Yesterday the grapes were bringing in a total of $88 a ton. This mark, it was said, would undoubtedly be exceeded before the season ended.

Malaga brought in from $105 to $110 a ton during the first part of the season, he said, due to the shortage of the crop which was two-thirds depleted by the killing frost of last spring. When these prices were brought in, the people went wild and started selling fast with the result that the market was loaded and prices dropped. Malaga, however, are up high again, due to a shortage on the market, he stated. About seventy-five percent of the crop has been moved.

Wine grapes have apparently started rolling toward the eastern auction markets. Those who hold their wine grapes until after September 1 will reap very high prices, it was said, as there will be a decided shortage then. Late Malaga will also bring in a high price at that time, the shipper predicted.

That the Malaga and table grapes will hold up well on the market with wine grapes firm, was the prediction made also.

Exporters are paying from $60 to $65 a ton for the fruit at present. Practically no offers lower than $50 are made while numerous offers of $65 have been forthcoming. It was said.

Even though prices being given now are much higher than had been anticipated, it was said that they are the lowest that will be offered this season.

Tomorrow — a 7-passenger Westcott for $2990

$2090

No course of reasoning could lead a wise car owner to purchase a smaller or less powerful car at this time—when he can get a car of Westcott quality at such prices as go into effect tomorrow. The luxurious 7-passenger Westcott, for instance, which has been selling recently for $2990 and a year ago was $3190, will (beginning tomorrow) be priced at $2090. The smart 5-passenger touring, which was $2690, will be $1890. Other models reduced proportionately. While the quality and completeness of the Westcott have not been cut a penny, the reductions as against last year's prices will range all the way up to $1300.

All War Increases Wiped Out

Westcott has gone at the task of lowering costs with determination. The object has been at any sacrifice to reach, promptly, a stable and satisfactory level of prices. This has been done by anticipating the lowered parts-costs, which will not actually be in effect until 1922.

The reductions here announced amount to as much as the increases which we were forced to make during the entire three years preceding! The Westcott can be purchased now at rock-bottom prices, and your investment is therefore protected and made safe against future variations in the market!

Regardless of price, the Westcott is a car you will enjoy. As it stands at your curb, it will be admired by all who see it. Distinction stands out in every line! The closer your inspection, the more will be revealed to be proud of. For the Westcott is right in detail, as it is right in design.

What a Car!

It climbs hills—pulls through sand and mud—handles in traffic—and in fact performs under all circumstances with an ease that is astonishing to those who drive the car for the first time.

In addition to containing nationally known units, such as Continental, Timken, Deico, Brown-Lipe, Borg & Beck, Willard, Warner, Fedders and Gemmer, it is equipped with every convenience that could add to the pleasure of its occupants.

It has thermostatically controlled motor temperature, radiator, clock, bumper, spotlight-socket, windshield cleaner, gas gauge on dash, cowl ventilator, cigar lighter, tonneau light, etc. Nothing has been spared that will make the Westcott a car of longer life, and of more genuine satisfaction during all the years of its long life.

Try It! Buy It!

At the new prices, the Westcott deserves every consideration at the hands of the most careful buyer. A phone call or a visit to our show room tomorrow will put you under no obligation, and we shall very gladly place a Westcott at your disposal for examination, trial or comparison as you may desire.

Receive Postal From Jimmy Murphy in France

A postcard, sending best wishes, was received yesterday from Jimmy Murphy, winner of the first annual San Joaquin Valley speedway classic at the fair last year, and winner of the Grand Prix in Paris, by Manager H. E. Patterson of the Chamber of Commerce. The card stated:

"Best wishes to yourself and Mrs. Nirova. Hope to be with you this fall."

"Yours truly," J. MURPHY.

It is believed that Murphy has already signed the contract to race here this year, and that it was placed in the mail shortly after the mailing of the card. Murphy, with Ralph De Palma, who is also expected to race here, are on the high seas bound for the United States from France.

AUGUST COOLER THAN NORMAL

Ninety-Nine Per Cent of Sunshine Recorded

In a weather way, August was an uneventful month, with no temperature extremes of consequence and with a mean temperature about 2 degrees below normal, according to the monthly report of W. E. Bennett.

There were no very sultry spells such as commonly occur during the latter part of this month, and on the whole it was more pleasant than the average August.

The highest maximum was 104 degrees on August 4, and the average maximum, 77 degrees. The lowest minimum of 67 degrees and the average minimum 68 degrees.

Ninety-nine per cent of the total possible sunshine was recorded, and the highest wind velocity was 21 miles per hour on August 18.

The slight deficiency in temperature had no important effect on maturing fruit, and the work of harvest went forward under generally favorable conditions. The ravages of red spider have almost completely defoliated some fruit trees, leaving the fruit exposed and without shade, but there was little complaint of burn, as the temperature remained moderate.
